HALL OF HONOR
UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE

The preparation of educators has been a tradition of The University of Tennessee since 1880. In the 21st century the College of Education, Health, and Human Sciences continues its mission in a renovated and expanded facility that features our Educators Hall of Honor in a prominent location. The Educators Hall of Honor allows donors to offer a tribute to those special individuals who have inspired and shaped and transformed them. It is our hope that this permanent tribute to the large accomplishments and small miracles of the past will also inspire new generations of educators.

Individual plaques—engraved with the names of teachers, professors, administrators, guidance counselors, as well as, coaches—are displayed prominently in the Claxton Complex, directly outside the dean’s office. The charter class of 2002 honored twenty educators who were memorable in the lives of students and colleagues. Names of new honorees are added to the display each year.

You may nominate an educator of your choice with a contribution of $1,000. A plaque honoring your nominee will be placed in the Educators Hall of Honor. Your contribution to the College of Education, Health, and Human Sciences will be included in a special endowment that provides critical scholarships for teacher interns and other undergraduate and graduate students in the college’s education programs.

For a contribution of $25,000 or more, you may establish a separate scholarship endowment bearing either your name or the name of the educator you choose to honor. The Educators Hall of Honor is a special opportunity to inspire the next generation of educators by honoring someone who inspired you. Your honoree deserves nothing less.

WHO CAN BE NOMINATED?

Candidates may be nominated in three different categories:

- An individual educator (at any level) or a person working in an education-related profession who has made or is making an outstanding contribution to the field.
- An individual who is not considered an educator, but who is making or has made a highly significant impact on the field of education.
- A group, organization, or school that is making or has made a significant impact on student learning or success or that has made a highly unusual contribution to scholarship funds for deserving or at-risk students.
